A Quick Reference Guide

If you are arrested, here's what you need to do first:

1

Contact Family or Friend FIRST

As soon as you are arrested, while waiting to be processed, you will be allowed to make 1 or 2 free calls. Use your calls to contact family or friends and tell them:

- I have been arrested.
- What your charges are
- Which jail you are in
- $ Amount of your bond (amount varies with number and severity of charges)

2

Post Your Bond, Do the Paperwork, and Get Released

An arrested person cannot post their own bond. After you have notified your family or friends of your arrest, they can come to the jail and pay the full bond amount with cash (Cash Bond) or use property as collateral for full bond amount (Property Bond) . If money is a problem, you can contact a bonding company to pay the bond for you.

3

Contact us and we will pay your bond and begin working on your release.

After you have notified your family or friends of your arrest, have them contact us if they need help posting the bond amount assigned to your case. We are a bonding company and we will help get you or your loved one released ASAP.

3 Ways to Post Your Bond/Bail

When someone is arrested, if the arrest charges are of a nature that allows the person to bond out of jail while they wait for their court date, the judge will assign a bond amount. This amount plus fees must be paid before arrested person can be released.

There are 3 ways the bond can be posted:

A

Cash Bond

Requires 100% of the bond assigned by the judge, plus the state fee of $200.00 (or 20%, whichever is less.) Plus any cash bond fee if the jail / court charges one.

B

Property Bond

If you have personal property of sufficient value that you would like to use as collateral on a bond, this can be handled at the jail with some paperwork and fees.

C

Bonding Company

If you don't have the money to cover your bond, or property to use as collateral, a bonding company will post the full bond amount for you and you pay them just a percentage as a service fee.

This option helps relieve pressure if money is a problem.
